

CAMERON FOSTER RETURNS TO BOULOS FOLLOWING DC CONSULTING STINT

Portland, Maine, November 30: The Boulos Company is pleased to welcome back Cameron Foster as an associate. Foster, who was an intern at the firm in 2015, has spent the last four years in Washington, DC as an integral member of a team facilitating over $22 million in real estate transactions. Working in all aspects of the business, he gained expertise helping local and national clients identify maximum leverage, value, and savings through an efficient real estate process.

“Cameron’s experience working in DC will make him a great addition to the company,” said Managing Director Drew Sigfridson. He will be assisting the team led by Sigfridson and Jessica Estes.

Foster earned a bachelor’s degree in business administration from High Point University, where he played NCAA Division 1 men’s soccer and was a three-time recipient of the Millis Scholar Athlete award. Real estate is in his blood: His grandfather, Craig Foster Sr, is a Portland real estate developer, who with his son Marc, manage a variety of properties throughout Maine and New England. Cameron is an avid snowboarder, surfer, and soccer fan, and can regularly be found volunteering at Portland’s Preble Street Resource Center. Welcome back, Cameron!

Please join us in congratulating Cameron in his new role.
